[Wilde, Oscar]. 1914 postcard handwritten and signed by Lord Alfred Douglas and other related items.

The postcard dated 14 February 1914 is to Douglas' father-in-law, Colonel Custance, criticising him for allowing his daughter, Olive, Douglas' wife to watch prize-fights in the company of Lord Clonmell and accusing him of trying to separate her from her husband. Also 1912 letter from Robert Ross to Sir George Lewis concerning Lady Glenconner and Lady Queensbury, The Genius of Lord Alfred Douglas by W. Sorley Brown pp8 in original wappers, and two other items. (5)
Lord Alfred Bruce Douglas (1870-1945), nicknamed Bosie, was a British author, poet and translator, better known as the friend and lover of the writer Oscar Wilde. Olive Custance (1874-1944) was the only daughter and heiress of Colonel Frederick Custance, who was a wealthy and distinguished soldier in the British army. Custance was bisexual. In 1901 she became involved in a lesbian relationship with writer Natalie Clifford Barney in Paris. Custance then became engaged to George Montagu, but ran away and married Lord Alfred Douglas instead. Her father did not approve of Douglas, and the two had eloped to avoid having problems. They married on 4 March 1902. They had one child, Raymond Wilfred Sholto Douglas, born on 17 November 1902. They separated in 1913, lived together again for a time in the 1920s but separated again later, though they never divorced.

1908 (28 April) William Butler Yeats signed letter
Typescript letter sent from 18 Woburn Buildings, London by W. B. Yeats. Interesting content relating to a child's poetry which has been sent to him "...the poem about The Lily closes in a very poetical and delicate thought 'In thy silvery dream I am bound'. Of course one can never say what so young a child is going to do in the future. Children of that age occasionally write little poems, very naturally and simply. Later on come bad models bringing with them lack of sincerity. I am very much struck by the strong feeling for rhythm in these verses."
