TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF SALE NOTICE

Whyte & Sons Auctioneers Limited, trading as Whyte's, exercises all reasonable care to ensure that all descriptions are reliable and accurate, and that each item is genuine unless the contrary is indicated. However, the descriptions are not intended to be, are not and are not to be taken to be, statements of fact or representations of fact in relation to the lot. They are statements of the opinion of Whyte's, and attention is particularly drawn to clause 5 set out below. Comments and opinions, which may be found in or on lots as labels, notes, lists, catalogue prices, or any other means of expression, do not constitute part of lot descriptions and are not to be taken as such unless they are made or specifically verified by Whyte's.

Clause 1

- (a) Each lot is put up subject to any reserve price imposed by the vendor
- (b) Subject to sub-clause (a) of this clause, the highest bidder for each lot shall be the buyer thereof
- (c) If any dispute arises as to the highest bidder the auctioneer shall have absolute discretion to determine the dispute and may put up again and re-sell the lot in respect of which the dispute arises

Clause 2

- (a) The bidding and advances shall be regulated by and at the absolute discretion of the auctioneer and he shall have the right to refuse any bid or bids. NOTE: Where an agent bids, even on behalf of a disclosed client, the auctioneer nevertheless has the right at his discretion to refuse any such bid.
- (b) The buyer of each lot shall immediately on its sale, if required by the auctioneer, give him the name and address of the buyer and pay to Whyte's at his discretion the whole or part of the purchase money. If the buyer of any lot fails to comply with any such requirement Whyte's may put up again and re-sell the lot; if upon such re-sale a lower price is obtained than was obtained on the first sale the buyer in default on the first sale shall make good the difference in price and expenses of re-sale which shall become a debt due from him.
- (c) Where an agent purchases on behalf of an undisclosed client such agent shall be personally liable for payment of the purchase money to Whyte's and for safe delivery of the lot to the said client.

Clause 3

- (a) Whyte's reserves the rights to bid on behalf of clients including vendors, but shall not be liable for errors or omissions in executing instructions to bid.
- (b) Whyte's reserves the rights, before or during a sale, to group together lots belonging to the same vendor, to split up and to withdraw any lot or lots at Whyte's absolute discretion and without giving any reason in any case.
- (c) Whyte's acts as agent only, and therefore shall not be liable for any default of the buyer or vendor.

Clause 4

- (a) Each lot shall be at the buyer's risk from the fall of the hammer and shall be paid for in full before delivery and taken away at his expense within one day of the sale. The buyer will be responsible for all removal, storage and insurance charges in respect of any lot which has not been collected within one day of the date of sale.
- (b) If any buyer fails to pay in full for any lot within 7 days of the date of sale such lot may at any time thereafter at Whyte's discretion be put up for sale by auction again or sold privately; if upon such re-sale a lower price is obtained than was obtained on the first sale the buyer in default on the first sale shall make good the difference in price and the expenses of re-sale which shall become debt due from him.
- (c) Interest at 2 per cent per month and legal costs (if any) for recovery of monies due shall be payable by the buyer on any overdue account.

Clause 5

- (a) All lots are made available for inspection before each sale and each buyer, by making a bid, acknowledges that he has satisfied himself as to the physical condition, age and catalogue description of each lot (including but not restricted to whether the lot is damaged or has been repaired or restored).
- (b) All lots are sold with all faults and imperfections and errors of description and Whyte's and its employees, servants or agents shall not be responsible for any error of description or for the condition or authenticity of any lot, save for Clause 5 (c) below.

Written or verbal condition reports may be supplied by Whyte's on request but these are merely statements of opinion, and any error or omission in these reports may not be taken as grounds for a cancellation of sale or refund of any part of the purchase price or the cost of any repairs to the lot or lots reported on

- (c) If any lot sold at this auction is subsequently proved to be a "deliberate forgery", Whyte's will cancel the sale and refund to the buyer the total amount paid by the buyer for the item, in the currency of the original sale. The onus of proving a lot to be a "deliberate forgery" is on the buyer. For these purposes, "deliberate forgery" means a lot that in Whyte's reasonable opinion is an imitation created to deceive as to authorship, where the correct description of such authorship is not reflected by the description in the catalogue (taking into account any Glossary of Terms). No lot shall be considered a deliberate forgery by reason only of any damage and/or restoration and/or modification work of any kind (including repainting or overpainting). This guarantee does not apply if (i) either the catalogue description was in accordance with the generally accepted opinions of scholars and experts at the date of the sale, or the catalogue description indicated that there was a conflict of such opinions; (ii) or the only method of establishing at the date of the sale that the item was a counterfeit would have been by means of processes not then generally available or accepted, unreasonably expensive or impractical to use; or likely to have caused damage to the lot or likely (in Whyte's reasonable opinion) to have caused loss of value to the lot; or (iii) there has been no material loss in value of the lot from its value had it been in accordance with its description. This guarantee is provided for a period of seven (7) years after the date of the relevant auction, is solely for the benefit of the buyer and may not be transferred to any third party. Whyte's has discretion to extend the guarantee for a longer period. To be able to claim under this Guarantee, the buyer must (i) notify Whyte's in writing within three (3) weeks of receiving any information that causes the buyer to question the authenticity or attribution of the item, specifying the lot number, date of the auction at which it was purchased and the reasons why it is thought to be a deliberate forgery; and (ii) return the item to Whyte's in the same condition as the date of the sale to the buyer and be able to transfer good title in the item, free from the third party claims arising after the date of the sale. Whyte's has discretion to waive any of the above requirements. Whyte's may require the buyer to obtain at the buyer's cost the reports of two independent and recognised experts in the field, mutually acceptable to Whyte's and the buyer. Whyte's shall not be bound by any reports produced by the buyer, and reserves the right to seek additional expert advice at its own expense. In the event Whyte's decides to rescind the sale under this Guarantee, it may refund the buyer the reasonable costs of up to two mutually approved independent expert reports.

(d) Any lot listed as a "mixed lot, collection, range, portfolio etc." or stated to comprise or contain a collection or range of items which are not described shall be put up for sale not subject to rejection and shall be taken by the buyer with all (if any) faults, lack of genuineness and errors of description and numbers of items in the lot, and the buyer shall have no right to reject the lot; except that, notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this sub-clause, where before a sale a person intending to bid at the sale gives notice in writing to, and satisfies Whyte's that any such lot contains any item or items not described in the sale catalogue and that person specifically describes that item or those items in that notice, then that item or those items shall, as between Whyte's and that person, be taken to form part of the description of the lot.

Clause 6

The respective rights and obligations of the parties shall be governed and interpreted by Irish law, and the buyer hereby submits to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Irish Courts.

SPECIAL CONDITIONS

- (a) The buyer shall pay Whyte's a commission at the rate of 25% (including VAT under The Margin Scheme and which is not reclaimable).
 - (b) Whyte's or its employees, servants or agents may, on request organise packing and shipping of lots purchased or may order on the buyer's behalf third parties to pack or ship purchases. Under no circumstances does Whyte's accept any liability whatsoever for any loss or damage howsoever occasioned in the course of such service.
 - (c) The buyer authorises Whyte's to use any photographs or illustrations of any lot purchased for any or all purposes as Whyte's may require.
- The placing of a bid will be taken as full agreement to all the above conditions.

IMPORTANT NOTES

ALL LOTS ARE SOLD SUBJECT TO OUR TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF SALE PRINTED ON PAGE 2

BUYERS' COMMISSION

20.32% (25% including VAT) is added to the hammer price of all lots.

ROOM BIDDERS

1. Room bidders must register and obtain a bidding number on arrival. Proof of identity is required from clients new to us.
2. If successful in obtaining a lot please ensure you display your number clearly to the auctioneer and that it is your number that is called out. If there is any doubt about the hammer price or buyer, please draw this to the attention of the auctioneer immediately.
3. Payment may be made by cash, bank draft, cleared cheque, debit or credit card — we accept Mastercard or Visa (a charge of 2% is made on credit card transactions). There is no charge on debit card transactions.

LIVE INTERNET BIDDING

You can bid "live" at this auction on our website. With live audio and visual broadcast you can see and hear the auctioneer and bid at the click of a mouse from the comfort of your home or office or wherever you can log on to the world wide web. You can even get an iPhone app to bid live at Whyte's from your mobile phone. Details from our website, www.whytes.ie

ABSENTEE BIDDING

1. If you are unable to attend you may bid before the sale, using the form provided. Enter the maximum you are prepared to offer for each lot and the auctioneer will represent you as if you are personally attending the sale. Lots are knocked down at one step above the next highest bid, and not necessarily at your highest bid. Example: your bid is €1000 and next highest bid is €800 — the hammer price is €850.
2. LIMIT BIDDING: Absentee bidders may limit their total purchases to a set amount by entering their limit on the bidding form. This is especially useful for bidders wishing to cover as many lots as possible while setting a maximum amount to spend.
3. "OR" BIDDING: Absentee bidders who wish to bid on two or more lots, but only wish to purchase one, may do so by entering "OR" between the bids — the lots will be bid on in catalogue order.
4. EQUAL BIDS: In the event of equal bids being received for the same lot the first received will be given preference. If the instruction "break ties" is entered on the bid form the auctioneer will increase the bid by one step in the event of equal bids being received or in the event of a tie with a room bidder.

5. "BUY" BIDS: Unless otherwise instructed bids of "Buy" or "Buy at Best" shall be taken to indicate bids of up to three times the stated higher estimate in the catalogue.
6. INVOICING AND PAYMENT: Successful absentee bidders will be sent a pro forma invoice immediately after the sale with details of payment methods. All invoices must be paid within 7 days of the date of the sale or the lot(s) may be deemed in default and any subsequent losses incurred on resale become the responsibility of the bidder. The Auctioneers and House Agents Act, under which we are licensed to hold public auctions, only allows for lots to be handed over to purchasers when paid for in full.

TELEPHONE BIDDING

Subject to availability we can telephone clients during the sale. This facility is only available on lots with a lower estimate of €500 or more.

CONDITION OF LOTS

Note: The lots in this sale are old artefacts and documents and vary greatly in condition. They are therefore offered with all faults and buyers are strongly recommended to satisfy themselves as to condition by inspecting them beforehand. Please see Terms and Conditions on page 5.

SHIPPING / POSTAGE

We do not handle this ourselves but will recommend a suitable company who can collect your purchases on your behalf and pack and despatch them to you once they have been paid for.

PRICES REALISED

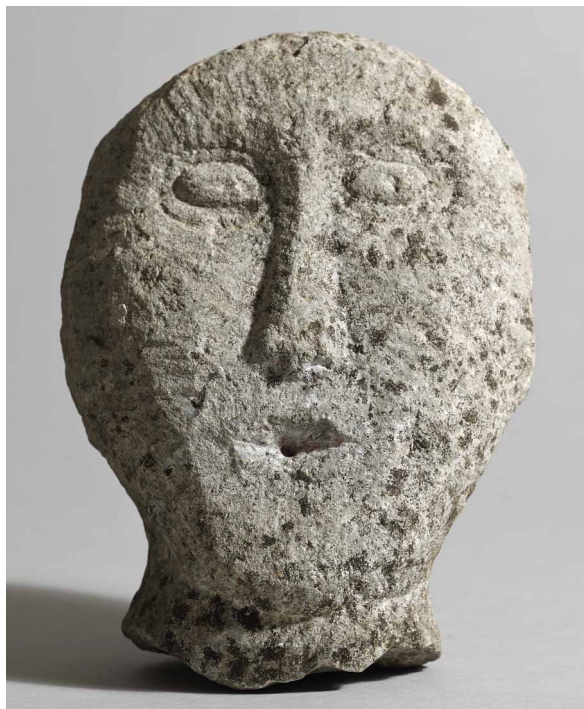

A complete list of prices realised and unsold lots will be sent automatically to all absentee bidders and will be posted to our Internet website (www.whytes.ie) on the day after the sale.

FIREARMS

All firearms offered in this sale are either antiques or deactivated.

EXPORT LICENCES

May be required for objects of archaeological interest or of national importance sold to buyers outside the State.

Circa 500BC to 500AD Iron Age. Irish stone head.
Limestone; broken at the base, lower part of mouth chipped. Weight: 3.52kg. The flattish facial composition comprises protuberant lentoid eyes with lightly defined eyelids, elongated triangular nose, and narrow open mouth, with minimally defined lips. There is a small hole (diameter: 4mm) in the centre of the mouth. The head is oval, with a narrow chin. In addition, the ears have been rendered as a large C-shaped raised outline at either side of the head.

It is notoriously difficult to be certain about the dating of an isolated stone head. The introduction of the carved stone head in Ireland can be traced to the Iron Age, but representations of the human head continued to be produced into the medieval period and beyond. Lorrha, Co. Tipperary is renowned for the wealth of its medieval heritage, but this stone head differs stylistically from the medieval examples at Lorrha, and there are reasonable grounds for regarding it as a prehistoric object. The Iron Age ('Celtic') carved stone head is characterised by simplicity of form. In the words of Barry Raftery, an authority on the Iron Age in Ireland, 'the realistic portrayal of the human form was of no great concern to Celtic craftsmen'. This stone head possesses a spare, primitive quality contrasting with the more naturalistic examples from the medieval period.

A number of stone heads provide parallels for this item, including one in Wakefield Museum, Yorkshire, dated 600 BC-AD 43, an example from Trabolgan, now in the National Museum of Ireland, and another in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, dated to the second to third centuries.

Etienne Rynne, writing on the corpus of Celtic stone heads in Ireland in 1972 noted that 'the hole in the mouth feature seems to be characteristic of some Celtic stone heads'. It has been suggested that it could be connected to the pouring of a liquid offering or libation into the mouth of the deity represented by the carved stone head during ceremonies.

The understated economy of the work suggests that this could well be a stone head dating from the Iron Age, although it must be recognised that such carved heads could be of more recent origin.

500BC to 500AD Iron Age. Irish stone head.
Granite, angled break at the base along one side. Weight: 8.78kg. Irregular, upright stone with flat base. The surface has rough overall texture, apart from the detail of the head/face and a tapered raised feature at the front, directly below the head. The back of the stone is curved. The outline of the head is smooth, projecting at an upward angle from the body of the stone.

Etienne Rynne, in considering the corpus of carved stone heads in Ireland in 1972, noted that the dating of these objects was 'extremely difficult', as features of pagan heads are paralleled in heads from the medieval period. Carved stone heads from the Iron Age in general are distinguished by simplicity in terms of the execution of the facial composition. In this instance, the work comprises nearly circular, slightly bulging eyes, broad nose and wide slit mouth with minimal definition of the lips. The only other area of the stone to be skilfully fashioned is in regard to a subtle, tapering 'throat' outlined below the front of the head. No attempt was made to define the ears or to include the hairline. Medieval stone heads in general were designed to project from a wall, like corbels, or in doorway arches. This stone head, with its flat base and upward tilting face, does not appear to have been designed to fit into a wall in that way, but seems intended to function more as a portable item, like a bust.

The wide mouth can be compared to a stone figure on a large stele from Holzgerlingen, Wurttemberg, dated to c. 380 BC, and a head from the sanctuary of Roquepertuse near Aix-en-Provence, dated to the fourth century BC. The combination of circular eyes and broad nose has affinities with pre-Christian stone carvings kept at Armagh Cathedral. A face carved into a stone block at Camlyball, near Newtownhamilton, Co. Armagh, has round eyes, contrasting with the lentoid eye forms that typify many instances of prehistoric stone heads.

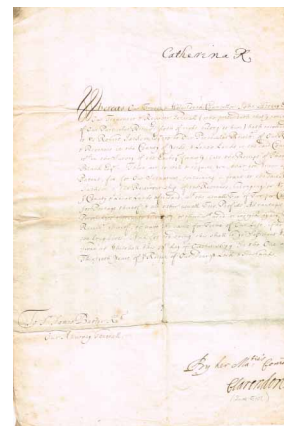

The simplified style of the object suggests that the head could date from the Iron Age, although with an isolated find of this nature, it is never absolutely certain that it is of prehistoric origin.

Circa 1200 to 500BC. Celtic twisted gold torc.

Weight: approximately 103 grams, overall 3 inches in diameter, and 3/8 inch thick, 0.9937 fine gold. Assay stamped '1000' circa 1930 in Germany.

Provenance: Found on the shores of the River Danube, circa 1930 by the present owner's grandfather, and assay marked at the time in Germany.

Other Notes: There are several types of rigid gold and sometimes bronze necklaces and collars of the later European Bronze Age, from around 1200 BC, many of which are classed as "torcs". They are mostly twisted in various conformations, including the "twisted ribbon" type, where a thin strip of gold is twisted into a spiral. Other examples twist a bar with a square or X section, or just use round wire, with both types in the three 12th- or 11th-century BC specimens found at Tiers Cross, Pembrokeshire, Wales. The Milton Keynes Hoard, contained two large examples of thicker rounded forms, as also used for bracelets. The quality of gold varied with 24 carat examples, such as this, being an indication of the status and importance of the individual that owned it. For example a hoard found at the Vix grave of a noble woman in France included a 24 carat torc weighing 500g.

1798-99 Rebellion: Letter from June Fraser daughter of Major James Fraser of the Fraser Fencibles

Dated 16 October 1799. Although addressed to Donald Davison, the letter starts "Dear Ann" and appears to be a "dear friend" of the writer. Content mainly concerns marriage arranged between a Colonel and a lady of great wealth, and the prospect of both June and Ann finding rich young men to marry, all reminiscent of a Jane Austen novel. Some mention of the Rebellion. It mentions her father printing proclamations offering the rebels a pardon if they surrendered but "the leaders will suffer at all events - there are double rewards offered for them". "I made many people laugh at the story of the officer who used to kill them by the dozen". A scarce letter from the daughter of an officer involved in "mopping up" exercises after the Rebellion. The Fraser Fencibles had been part of the British force defeated at the Battle of Castlebar by General Humbert.

4pp quarto, written both ways to save postage, sent as a Soldier's Letter and therefore rated one penny.

Townley, Blainey. A Manuscript Abstract of the Expence of Building a House and Office in Sackville Street In the City of Dublin for Blainey Townley Esquire

Townley, Blainey. A Manuscript Abstract of the Expence of Building a House and Office in Sackville Street In the City of Dublin for Blainey Townley Esquire.. Dublin: Folio. Good A 4pp. mss. document with nearly all of the text on the first page in a neat hand. Outlined in detail are the expenses due to various workers, many of whom are named for different aspects of the building work undertaken on building this premises in Sackville Street. While the document is not dated it is probably circa 1790-94. It may well be that the building in question was 59 Sackville Street which is where the Sackville Street Club was located. This gentleman's club was founded by Blainey Townley in 1794.

Blainey Townley Balfour (1769-1856), J.P., D.L., a lawyer, 1797-1800 Balfour was M.P. for Belturbet in the Irish parliament 1797-1800. Opposed. to the act of union, he was a supporter of Catholic Relief in 1829, though his Sackville Street Club did not admit Roman Catholics to its membership.

Zillebecke Church
October 1918

Mud!
Everywhere
Nothing but mud!
The very air seems thick with it
The few tufts of grass are all smeared in it
Mud!
The Church, a heap of it
One looks and weeps for it
That's what they made of it
Mud.
slimy and wet
Turned and refused.

Here bones that once mattered with crosses are scattered broken and battered covered in mud
Here where the church's bells told when our heroes fell in that mad dash of hell
Mud!
That's what our faith left of it

1918-19 Another from all about me become back to ephors a little back. Zillebecke is about a kilometer from Ypres.
Have you left home for good? or bad? Have I no longer a home in the old country? am I an outcast?
my love to your mother. Mollie 1914-18 Women munitions workers on War Service, Dublin, photograph and letters.

Photograph of a group of women with sign reading "ON WAR SERVICE", and letters on National Munitions (No. 10 Area), Ireland, National Shell Factory, Parkgate Street, Dublin, certifying that Miss Mary Noonan served from November 1916, and a letter of dismissal dated 9 December 1918, less than a month after Armistice Day. Extremely rare record of Irish women working on British War Service.

Provenance: Mary "May" Noonan, who is pictured in the photograph; thence by descent, and gifted to the present owner.

National Shell Factories were established in Cork, Dublin, Galway and Waterford. The workforce in the new shell factories was overwhelmingly female. Only five per cent of this industrial workforce could be male under government munitions regulations. The Shell Factories gave many young Irish women their first experience as trade unionists, with the women represented by the NFWW, the National Federation of Women Workers, which succeeded in bringing about improved conditions and rates of pay, but not without struggle. In September 1918 for example, almost 600 women were temporarily locked out of employment.

1918-19. Sir William Orpen poem "Mud" original manuscript sent to his wife in England

Headlined "Zilebeke Church, October 1918" on a single foolscap sheet, Orpen's famous poem on the battlefield in World War I, in which he served as a war artist with the rank of major, in his own hand and signed "Billon". In original envelope with Field Post Office and Military censor marks, dated 19 May 1919, addressed to Lady Orpen at Chesham, and signed "William Orpen, Major". A unique manuscript by one of Ireland's most famous artists and arguably Britain's greatest World War I artist, who uniquely conveyed some of the horror of trench warfare.

The proceeds of the sale of this manuscript, kindly donated by Orpen's grandson, Richard Olivier, will go to funding for a statue of William Orpen to be erected at his birthplace, Stillorgan, County Dublin.

Inginide na h-Éireann (Daughters of Ireland) brass brooch.

Large brooch with "Inginide na h-Éireann" inscribed in Gaelic lettering.

Provenance: Issued to Elizabeth Breen; thence by descent to present owner.

Inghinidhe na hÉireann (English: Daughters of Ireland) was a radical Irish nationalist women's organisation led by Maud Gonne from 1900 to 1914, when it merged with the newly formed Cumann na mBan. Originally set up to provide an alternative to Queen Victoria's party for children during her visit to Dublin, it rapidly evolved into a political movement and later a support to the Irish Volunteers and IRA.

A book with hidden revolver, dating to the 1916-22 period.

Statuta et Decreta Universitatis Oxoniensis, 1909, Red cloth, gilt. A compartment cut from the centre containing a miniature small-calibre revolver.

Provenance: Adam's, 15 April 2008, lot 561, where described thus: "This item was purchased by present vendor in a lot of miscellaneous books at a dispersal auction recently at The Mill House, Rathfarnham, which was occupied until the 1930s by Bulmer Hobson, formerly an active member of the I.R.B. The recent sale included some books purchased from the Hobsons at the same time the Hobsons disposed of the house. (See accompanying vendor's note). It is therefore most likely that this item was a concealed pistol belonging to Bulmer Hobson, as the later owners, deny that it was ever belonging to them. Even if not Hobson's, the pistol must have been concealed by someone in the period of the Irish Independence struggle (1909 at earliest). A similar example in the National Museum. * Hobson was a leading member of the Dungannon Clubs, the I.R.B. and Fianna Éireann from about 1905, but fell out with the I.R.B. over the Redmonite take over of the Irish Volunteers in 1914. He took no further part in political affairs, but might well have felt his life was potentially in danger. Although a Quaker, from Co. Down, he was not a pacifist."

1916 Irish Volunteer

Eoin MacNeill ed., Irish Volunteer Vol. 2. No. 67 (New Series). Saturday, March 18th, 1916, just six weeks before the Rising.

€80-€120 (€60-€100 approx)

The Irish Republic is entitled to, and hereby claims, the allegiance of every Irishman and Irishwoman. The Republic guarantees religious and civil liberty, equal rights and equal opportunities to all its citizens, and declares its resolve to pursue the happiness and prosperity of the whole nation and of all its parts, cherishing all the children of the nation equally, and oblivious of the differences carefully fostered by an alien government, which have divided a minority from the majority in the past.

Until our arms have brought the opportune moment for the establishment of a permanent National Government, representative of the whole people of Ireland and elected by the suffrages of all her men and women, the Provisional Government, hereby constituted, will administer the civil and military affairs of the Republic in trust for the people.

We place the cause of the Irish Republic under the protection of the Most High God, Whose blessing we invoke upon our arm and we pray that no one who serves that cause will dishonour it by cowardice, inhumanity, or rapine. In this supreme hour the Irish nation must, by its valour and discipline and by the readiness of its children to sacrifice themselves for the common good, prove itself worthy of the august destiny to which it is called.

Signed on Behalf of the Provisional Government,

THOMAS J. CLARKE,
SEAN Mac DIARMADA, THOMAS MacDONAGH,
P. H. PEARSE, EAMONN CEANNT,
JAMES CONNOLLY, JOSEPH PLUNKETT.

April 1916 The Castle Document

Secret Orders Issued to Military Officers, known as "The Castle Document", April 1916 "The following precautionary measures have been sanctioned by the Irish Office on the recommendation of the General Officer Commanding the Forces in Ireland ... " - As circulated by P.J. Little, ed. New Ireland office 13 Fleet Street, Dublin, 15 April, 1916. The famous forged document, produced by Joseph Plunkett to convince Eoin MacNeill to issue the orders necessary to proceed with the rising. MacNeill's subsequent discovery of the ruse led to his countermanding the orders and the postponement of the rising. A rare and important document. 7¾ x 5in. (19.69 x 12.70cm)

1916. Proclamation of The Irish Republic.

The final two paragraphs of Ireland's most important document of the 20th Century, including the signatories. Printed by letterpress on poor quality paper of a greyish white shade. The printed area is 11.75 x 18ins. Framed.

An exceedingly rare half sheet of the 1916 Proclamation. The proclamation was printed in two parts due to lack of type according to John O'Connor in The Story Of The 1916 Proclamation. The top half was printed first and then the type was reset to print the bottom half. The British soldiers who captured Liberty Hall from the Citizen Army found the lower half frame of type still in the Wharfedale printing press and ran off a small number of copies as souvenirs. O'Connor, q.v., says "[these halfsheets] are very rare but one such copy is in Kilmainham Jail Museum". According to Joseph Bouch, (The Republican Proclamation of Easter Monday, 1916 Dublin, 1936) these half sheets were printed on two different coloured papers. Less than twenty examples of these half sheets are recorded, making it even rarer than the full sheet document.

General Sir J. G. Maxwell's Uniforms

Maxwell's dress uniforms as Colonel and General of the Black Watch (42nd) Royal Highland Regiment, consisting a levee dress uniform with rank insignia of a Colonel, and a review order uniform with those of a General.

Accompanied by the appropriate kilt, sporran, plaid, trousers, cross-belt with plate, stockings, kid gaiters. In steel trunk with brass plaque engraved "General Sir J. G. Maxwell, K.B.E. M.V. R.M.S. D.S.O."

General Sir John Grenfell Maxwell GCB, KCMG, CVO, DSO, PC (11 July 1859 – 21 February 1929) was a British Army officer and colonial governor. He served in the Mahdist War in the Sudan, the Boer War, and in the First World War, but he is best known for his role in the brutal suppression of the 1916 Easter Rising and subsequent execution of rebellion leaders.

After the Rising started, on 24 April 1916, Martial Law was declared for the city and county of Dublin by the Lord Lieutenant, Lord Wimborne, to allow Court Martial trials of persons breaching the Defence of the Realm Act (DORA), passed 8 August 1914 and to deal with such occurrences as the Rising.

Maxwell arrived in Ireland on Friday 28 April as "military governor" with "plenary powers" under Martial law. He set about dealing with the rebellion under his understanding of Martial law. During the week 2 to 9 May, Maxwell was in sole charge of trials and sentences by "field general court martial", which was trial without defence or jury and in camera. He had 3,400 people arrested, 183 civilians tried, 90 of whom were sentenced to death. Fifteen were executed by firing squad between 3 May and 12 May. Prime Minister H.H. Asquith and his government became concerned at the speed and secrecy of events before intervening to stop more executions. In particular, there was concern that Defence of the Realm (DORA) regulations of general court martial were not applied, i.e. a full court of thirteen members, a professional judge, legal advocate and held in public, which could have prevented some executions. Maxwell admitted in a report to Asquith in June that the impression that the leaders were killed in cold blood without trial had resulted in a 'revulsion of feeling' that had set in, in favour of the rebels, and was the result of the confusion between applying DORA as opposed to Martial law. Although Asquith promised to publish the court martial proceedings, they were not published until the 1990s.

Maxwell retired in 1922 and died, aged 69, in 1929.

1916 Frongoch autograph album with page written by Michael Collins

The prisoner of war camp album of Paurig Brennan, Meelick Cross, Limerick. Includes an entry by Michael Collins, signed by him and dated "Frongoch, 1916".

An organiser of considerable intelligence, Collins had become highly respected in the Irish Republican Brotherhood. This led to his appointment as financial advisor to Count Plunkett, father of one of the Easter Rising's organisers, Joseph Mary Plunkett. When it commenced on Easter Monday 1916, Collins served as Joseph Plunkett's aide-de-camp in the GPO Dublin. Arrested, but fortuitously escaping execution, he was imprisoned at Frongoch where he organised a program of protest and non-cooperation with authorities. He was released in December 1916 and rapidly became an outstanding commanderr in the War of Independence.

Includes Ginnell's handwritten draft of his proposed 1914 Irish Land Bill, pp22, printed bill, and two other related bills, an undated pp7 shorthand manuscript on House of Commons paper, the last page in full script referring to religion and treason, 1916 Rising typescript of Pearse's "Last Bulletin from Republican Headquarters Dublin 29th April 1916", carbon copies of typed statements including statements and accounts by an Irish Volunteer pp5, various statements by witnesses of the Rising pp15, "The Female Prisoners" pp3, "Captain Colbert" pp3 by a female prisoner, "John [Sean] Mac DERMOTT's treatment the night of his execution", and various others, pp5, 1921 Ginnell' as "Envoy Extraordinary of The Republic of Ireland" in Buenos Aires, two files of correspondence with Frank Egan in Chile and Gaspar Nicolls in Bolivia, including printed notice of Asociacion Nacional Irlandesa, etc., Ginnell's address to the Dail in 1922 pp3, Irish Legation Circulars, Washington USA1923, etc. A rare assembly of primary source material concerning Ginnell.

Laurence Ginnell (1852-1923) was an Irish nationalist politician, lawyer and was elected Irish Parliamentary Party MP at Westminster for Westmeath North at the 1906 UK general election. From 1910 he sat as an Independent Nationalist and at the 1918 general election he was elected for Sinn Féin. The last great social and agrarian campaign of the home rule movement - the Ranch War (1906 and 1909), was largely led and organised by Ginnell.

In Westminster he was highly critical of the British Government's war policy, and its executions of the Easter Rising leaders. On 9 May he accused the British Prime Minister H. H. Asquith, of "Murder", and was forcibly ejected from the assembly. He was imprisoned in March 1918 for encouraging agitation, and later deported to Reading Gaol. In the 1918 general election, he was elected as a Sinn Féin MP and in 1919 sat in Dáil Éireann. Ginnell was appointed Director of Propaganda of the Irish Republic. He was appointed the Representative of the Irish Republic in Argentina and South America. He opposed the Anglo-Irish Treaty and was elected as an anti-Treaty Sinn Féin TD at the 1922 general election. He returned to the United States soon after this to serve as the Anti-Treaty Republicans' envoy and died there in 1923.

1918 Two handwritten letters from Constance Markievicz.
Both addressed "Darling", apparently to JH MacDonnell, London, one from 149 Leinster Road (Rathmines, Dublin), Contents refer to conscription - "we will not fight for England - the Easter Week murders have put a spirit into this country", "they would look on it as a betrayal and infamy to put on the khaki coat of Connolly and Pierce's butchers". She talks of persecution of the Fianna and a demonstration of 300 boys that was about to be fired on by the RIC and a boy being sentenced to hard labour, her support for the Germans - "thank God the Germans are running them [the English]. I only hope they get to London in time to save Ireland from massacre and exterminations....We watch the German progress with hope and joy". The first 6pp, the second 2pp, both quarto, both signed "C de M". Scarce unpublished letters of Countess Markievicz. Also with this lot a letter from R. Cotter in Brixton Prison dated 1 June 1918 to MacDonnell. Markievicz refers, in one of the letters, to two Cotter brothers who have disappeared and she suspects they are in English prisons. (3)

War of Independence rapid fire shotgun cylinder
A War of Independence period rapid fire shotgun cylinder, chambered for nine 2.25", 16-bore cartridges. Extremely rare example of a home-made IRA weapon of 1919-21. From the same cache as lot 277.
Due to the ready availability of shotgun cartridges and the ease with which spent cartridges can be re-charged, the Irish Volunteers attempted to build a rapid fire shotgun. A workshop was established in Liberty Hall and the services of an American gun-smith engaged. This cylinder, discovered in 2014 among a cache of Irish Volunteers' weapons and kit, is probably a product of this attempt.

1920 (27 July) statement of Thomas Hales of Bandon, relating his torture by British military officers.

6pp typed statement inscribed "For Mac", giving details of Irish volunteer's capture, detention and torture. Also 2pp typed statement by the "commandant of the Auxiliary Division RIC" relating to the looting of the mails by Auxiliaries in County Kilkenny. (2)

Thomas "Tom" Hales (5 March 1892 - 29 April 1966) was an Irish Republican Army (IRA) volunteer and politician from West Cork. He was a friend of Michael Collins. Born at Knocknacurra, Ballinadee, near Bandon on a family farm owned by his father Robert who was an activist in the Land War and a reputed member of the Fenian Brotherhood. Tom Hales and his brothers, Seán, Bob and William, fought with the IRA in west Cork during the Irish War of Independence. A fifth brother, Donal, settled in Genoa from 1913, was appointed Irish Consular and Commercial Agent for Italy in February 1919. During the War, Tom was captured by the British Army in Cork and was badly beaten and tortured in an effort to make him disclose the whereabouts of prominent IRA figures, including Michael Collins. He never broke, though his co-accused, Patrick Harte suffered brain damage and died in hospital insane. The torture of Hales and Harte is believed to have influenced a scene in the film The Wind That Shakes the Barley in which an IRA officer's fingernails are pulled out.

During the Irish Civil War the Hales brothers fought on opposite sides. Tom Hales commanded the Flying Column which attacked the Free State Army convoy at Béal na Bláth which resulted in the death of his friend, Michael Collins. Allegedly Toms children are aware who fired the fatal bullet that killed Michael Collins but have never revealed his identity.

Hales was elected to Dáil Éireann as a Fianna Fáil TD for the Cork West constituency at the 1933 general election, but failed to retain his seat as an independent candidate at the 1937 general election, and later contested elections unsuccessfully as an independent and as a member of Clann na Poblachta.

1921-40 interesting archive relating to William "Billy" Mombrun. Includes Mombrun's internment order at the Curragh Camp (Rath) for allegedly attempting to smuggle guns from Glasgow, correspondence relating to his appeals for release, later permit from the Free State Director of Intelligence for him to have a revolver, and, intriguingly, a "Dublin S.F. Circle" handbill seeking subscriptions to purchase a Spitfire for "the heroic airmen of The British Empire" including Mombrun as a trustee of the Circle's bank account. (26).

William Alexander Mombrun (c1880-1951) was born in England and came to Ireland after 1918 as manager of General Electric Company's Dublin office. He is mentioned in Military Archives as having assisted the IRA during the War of Independence, and his internment resulted from the discovery by police in Glasgow of boxes of arms and ammunition addressed to him at GEC Dublin in April 1921.

1921 Manchester arson attacks by IRA archive including a letter from Michael Collins to Paddy O'Donoghue.

Fascinating archive of letters and documents concerning Paddy O'Donoghue and his arrest and imprisonment for arson attacks on Manchester businesses during the Irish War of Independence as reprisals for British forces' burnings of homes and businesses in Ireland. Includes a statement to his solicitor by Paddy O'Donoghue giving details of his activities and his arrest, copy of his letter to Michael Collins justifying the campaign and complaining that the prisoners were being asked to defend themselves with false alibis and legalities rather than demand to be treated as Prisoners of War. Michael Collins 2pp letter of 7 July 1921 in reply mentioning "a chance of getting you away from where you are", which turned out to be a bungled escape from prison - "very disgraceful" writes Collins. He mentions he will "communicate with the Solr." (JH MacDonnell) and explore the possibility of O'Donoghue not being called to give evidence and thus avoid repenting "of our own deeds" or being "ashamed of them". Also includes 9pp small notebook pages of instructions by O'Donoghue regarding the case to MacDonnell, and a Michael Collins lecture by Seán McGarry, circa 1925, original manuscript and typescript.

Typescript pp20, manuscript pp78 including drafts in McGarry's own hand. The lecture was under the chairmanship of Collins' biographer Piaras Beaslai, and seems to have taken place in the 1920s.

Seán McGarry (1885-1960) was one of the founders in 1909 of the Irish National Boy Scouts, also known as Na Fianna Éireann. McGarry was a prominent member of the Irish Republican Brotherhood and along with Countess Markievicz, Bulmer Hobson, Helena Moloney and Dr. Pat McCartan formed the first 'unofficial' Fianna Committee. McGarry fought in the GPO during the Easter Rising as his Tom Clarke's Aide de Camp. He was imprisoned in Frongoch camp following the Rising and afterwards became President of the Supreme Council of the IRB and General Secretary of the Irish Volunteers in 1917.

McGarry was one of those 'well-known' Republicans who were rounded up and imprisoned in the 'German Plot' of 1918. He later escaped from Lincoln Jail in February 1919 with Éamon de Valera. He fought in the War of Independence and became a Sinn Féin TD in 1921.

He supported the Treaty and was targeted by the anti-Treaty side during the Irish Civil war of 1922/23. In December 1922 his house was set on fire, allegedly by anti-Treaty forces and his son Emmett lost his life in the blaze.

Following the Civil War he briefly remained in politics, first with Cumann na nGaedheal, then with the National Party. He was a founder and later President of the 1916-21 Club which was set up in the 1940s to heal the divisions brought about by Civil War.

1922 (22 June) Assassination of Sir Henry Wilson by Reginald Dunn and Joseph O'Sullivan, London IRA.

The very important archive of the IRA men's defending solicitor, JH MacDonnell, comprising: 23 June 1922 slips(4) with signed instructions to MacDonnell to act for them, signed by Dunne, O'Sullivan, also Seán O'Brien and James Connolly; 16 July 1922 "strictly private and confidential" statement by Dunne in his hand and signed by him, with a typed transcript "to be given...to the Officer Commanding the London District IRA Area", giving a detailed account, with diagram, of the assassination; notes on his defence to MacDonnell from Dunn; 16 July 1922 manuscript and typed statements to the court (which the judge refused to have read out in court); 17/18 July 1922 manuscript letter recommending Captain Brian O'Gorman to Captain J Shanaghan of Oriel House, Dublin (HQ of Michael Collins' Intelligence Office) - an intriguing note possibly confirming Collins and Oriel House involvement in the killing of Wilson; 3 August 1922 Court of Criminal Appeal Notification of Result of Final Appeal both for Dunn, dismissing the appeal, with an inscription by Dunn to MacDonnell; 9 August 1922 manuscript Last Will & Testament documents of both Dunn and O'Sullivan, signed by both and witnessed by the Governor of Wandsworth Prison, with manuscript and typed detailed list of distribution of his personal effects by Dunn; 9 August manuscript letter by Dunn to his father with typed transcript, with stamped and postmarked envelopes in his hand to his father and mother; July 1909 printed notification of a scholarship awarded to Dunn at St. Ignatius College SJ, London; undated 4pp pamphlet "You can stop Reprisals NOW" defending the actions of Dunn and O'Sullivan; 21 July 1922 single sheet reprint from the Irish Independent of Reginald Dunn's Statement; 5 January 1923 a printed mourning letter in Irish to JH MacDonnell from Seán Mac Craith enclosing memoriam cards for Dunn and O'Sullivan as well as Áine Ní Craith. (30) thence by descent.

Provenance: JH MacDonnell, Solicitor, London WC2;

Literature: Irish Historical Studies Volume 28, Number 110, November 1992, pp150-170: Michael Collins and The Assassination of Sir Henry Wilson by Peter Hart.

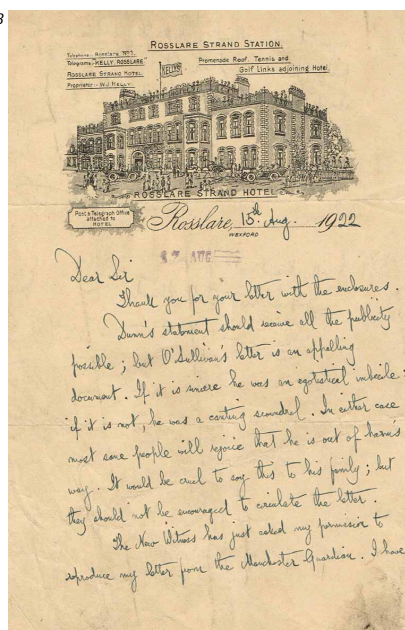

The assassination of Sir Henry Wilson was apparently authorised by the IRA and IRB in early 1921 but put on hold due to the Truce of June that year. With the signing of the Treaty the action should have been cancelled; it is therefore a matter of some controversy that it went ahead, possibly with the approval of either Michael Collins or Rory O'Connor. The letter, in this archive, from Dunn to Brian O'Gorman, implying Dunn's strong link to the Intelligence Office of the Provisional Government in Oriel House, might be evidence that the action was sanctioned by Collins. The killing of Wilson outraged the British Government, and, under immense pressure by Winston Churchill, the Provisional Government were forced to attack the anti-treaty forces using artillery supplied by the UK, thus starting the Civil War.

Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, born in Co. Longford in 1864, was one of Britain's most distinguished army officers, serving as Chief of The Imperial Staff in 1918. He oversaw the British military operations, including "the war of terror" by the Auxiliaries, in Ireland during the War of Independence, and later became a Unionist MP for Co. Down. Reginald Dunn and Joseph O'Sullivan were former British soldiers who had served in France, fighting 'for the rights of small nationalities'; O'Sullivan lost a leg at Ypres. On returning to England they joined the IRA, with Dunn rising to be the commanding officer of London District.

JH MacDonnell, son of an Irish Nationalist MP, Mark Antony MacDonnell, was a distinguished London solicitor and member of the Irish Self Determination League. He defended many Irish republicans, including 1916 Rising participants.

1922 (15 August 1922). Manuscript letter written by George Bernard Shaw regarding Dunn and O'Sullivan, to their solicitor.

Single octavo page of Kelly's Rossclare Strand Hotel notepaper, written on both sides in Shaw's own hand. Shaw had written in The Guardian and The Nation about the injustice of the trial of Dunn and O'Sullivan for the murder of Sir Henry Wilson. Here he repeats his view "these men were simply lynched, though there was no difficulty in executing them legally". He is acknowledging receipt of the men's statements and approves of the publication of Dunn's but not of O'Sullivan - "if it is sincere he is an egotistical imbecile". Fascinating contribution to this intriguing and murky episode of Irish history by the Nobel Laureate. €1,000-€1,500 (£800-£1,200 approx)

O'Kelly in His Capacity as Editor & Patrick Keohane founder and Sometime Managing Editor of the Catholic Bulletin & M. H.Gill & Son Circa 1918-57 with contributions from many different clergy and laity, including much interesting political and historical interest.

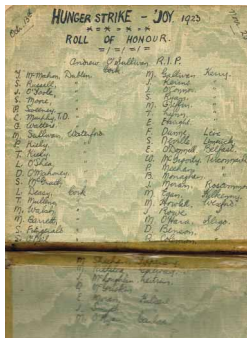

John Joseph O'Kelly joined Sinn Féin at its inaugural meeting on 5 November 1905. Following the 1916 Easter Rising, O'Kelly joined the Irish National League and became treasurer of the Irish National Aid and Volunteers' Dependents' Fund for the relief of prisoners and their families. In February 1917 he was arrested and deported to England where he was interned. On his release O'Kelly was elected to the Provisional Committee of the newly merged Irish National League and Sinn Féin, thereafter called Sinn Féin. He was appointed editor of the influential "Catholic Bulletin". In 1918 he was elected as a Sinn Féin MP for Louth and took his seat in Dáil Éireann and was Leas-Cheann Comhairle (Deputy chairman) from 1919-21. He was Secretary for Education in the Government of the 2nd Dáil. From 1919 to 1923, he was President of the Gaelic League. He opposed the Anglo-Irish Treaty After the resignation of Éamon de Valera as president of Sinn Féin in 1926, O'Kelly, who maintained an abstentionist policy towards Dáil Éireann, was elected in his place and remained in this position until 1931.

JAMES FREER,
P.S.A.

I have very respectfully, as first,
but I desire my grace &
I disclaim the heart's twinging
After I recanted the heart's fettered rebellion, I've not purchased from the future and am not at all free at all resignation.

Having read a hundred times your own composition, in every page, that nothing could have induced me to return to you but as always, more or less, yet more a heart's twinge of me.
Hence you will hardly except this explanation. I remain,
"In haste, to see the first,"
Sincerely yours
John Bennett.
